Drawing Down the Moon: Witches, Druids, Goddess ...

The name, Drawing Down the Moon, is said to have come from a depiction of two women and the moon on an ancient Greek vase, believed to date from the second century BCE. When a solitary witch performs this ritual it is done during a full Moon and within a circle. The solitary witch assumes the goddess pose, both arms are held high with palms up, the body and arms form a Y, the witch then chants to invoke the Goddess spirit.
