The Leaders Handbook, from Peter Scholtes is a management classic. Scholtes describes what leadership should be like in the 21 st century: inspiring people to continuously improve the processes in which they work. For me personally, this book describes the link between lean production and what Peter Senge (1990) describes as systems thinking.

This chapter distinguishes between government, economy, and the third sector to locate the space for a civic leadership that can promote social change. The chapter separates leadership from formal positions of authority. This simple decoupling has profound implications. It extends politics beyond the realm of government, and challenges fundamental assumptions about leadership, including ...
